

A place to create, connect, and slow down — rooted in nature, territory, and community.

1. More than a residency, an experience

A unique place to create, connect, and slow down in connection with nature, territory, and community. TERRA is a small-scale physical residency for one artist at a time, created for those seeking space, tranquility, and a meaningful connection with their surroundings.

Located about 45 km from the city of Buenos Aires, in a semi-rural community surrounded by nature and a mindful community linked to the land, ancestral traditions, and cultural initiatives,

TERRA offers the opportunity to immerse oneself in a different rhythm. Here, artistic practice becomes part of the experience of inhabiting a place: observing its landscape, discovering its ecosystem and community, and finding inspiration in everyday life.

2. Your own space to create

At the heart of TERRA is a private tiny house designed to host one artist in residence. The space includes:

- A comfortable sleeping area
- A small workspace
- Fully equipped kitchen

- Private indoor and outdoor spaces
- Wi-Fi and utilities included
- Access to the surrounding garden and an outdoor creative space

The tiny house is specially adapted for artists whose practices can be developed through writing, painting, drawing, photography, research, mixed media, and other small- to medium-scale work formats. The surrounding outdoor space offers an ideal environment to experiment, observe, work, and express ideas freely in direct contact with nature.

3. Living with the local ecosystem

TERRA is located in a community transitioning from a semi-rural setting, where a growing number of people choose more conscious ways of living and seek to strengthen their connection with the land. Within walking distance, residents can find agroecological farms, local producers, cultural spaces, and community initiatives.

You will be able to buy seasonal produce directly from farmers, discover local foods such as honey, free-range eggs, dairy, and wine (yes, wine in Buenos Aires), and connect with artists and creators working across various disciplines.

The area also hosts festivals dedicated to culture and nature, as well as regular community activities throughout the year. This is not simply a place to stay: it is a place to be a part of for a while.

4. Art beyond the studio

We believe a residency can extend beyond the artist's private workspace. Residents may have the opportunity to give talks, workshops, or share their processes with the community through an exhibition, reading, presentation, or open studio.

These opportunities are entirely optional. They are not a requirement or condition of the residency, but an invitation to share what has emerged during your stay at TERRA.

5. Intentionally intimate

Hosting one artist at a time allows us to offer a personal experience and genuine integration into the local environment. During your stay, we can help you connect with:

- Local artists and creators
- Agroecological farms and small producers
- Cultural spaces and community initiatives
- Immersive nature experiences
- Local events and activities

Curatorial Support & Mentorship (Optional & at no extra cost)

We understand that every creative process is unique. For residents who desire it, we offer optional curatorial dialogue, project feedback, and mentorship throughout their stay. For those who prefer complete self-management and independent work, we fully respect and honor that autonomy.

We can also assist you with practical matters such as transportation, local recommendations, and navigating the area. We can help coordinate with the community so you can connect with neighbors and share rides to town or Buenos Aires City. Additionally, there are charters, local bus lines, and Cabify (Uber) available.

6. Optional experiences

If you wish to explore the area in greater depth, additional experiences can be arranged, such as:

- Weekly agroecological food baskets
- Bicycle rental
- Wild nature immersion days
- Visits and connections with local producers and artists

Across from the residency, a local NGO dedicated to native plants offers another opportunity to connect with the ecosystem. Residents can choose to volunteer there and, in return, learn about native flora and its care.

7. Closing the residency

At the end of your stay, you may choose to share your process with the local community through an open studio, reading, exhibition, or presentation. There is no requirement to produce a final artwork or exhibition. The intention is simply to offer an opportunity to share whatever has taken shape during your time here.

Ready to immerse yourself in the experience?

TERRA is for artists seeking more than just a workspace. It is an invitation to inhabit a different rhythm: to create, observe, connect with a territory, and become part of a community, if only for a time.

Come create from the land.

Application Requirements

To apply to TERRA, please send a single PDF file (or complete the form) including the following items:

- Personal and contact information: Full name, country of residence, email, phone number, and relevant links (website and/or Instagram profile).
- Dates of interest: Estimated period and duration of your stay (from 15 days to 3 months).
- Motivation letter: A brief introduction telling us why you are interested in doing the residency at TERRA and what you are looking for in this experience (max. 1 page).
- Letter of recommendation: A reference letter from a cultural figure, institution, mentor, or colleague.
- Portfolio: A representative selection of your recent work or projects (or a website containing your portfolio).
- Project proposal or intent: Initial ideas, research lines, or sketches of what you would like to start, continue, or explore during your time here. Remember that it is not necessary to present a finished project; we value open processes as much as creative exploration.
